Project title
Kuujjuaq Daily Youth Camp
Community (list communities) or regional project
Kuujjuaq
Project Manager
Louisa Yeates
Project summary
The Kuujjuaq Daily Youth Camp plays a major role in the community by providing a safe environment for Kuujjuaq’s youth, starting from age 5 to 12 for the participants, and ages 14 and up for the animators, coordinators and assistant. The camp therefore also creates full time positions for students and offers training that gives them a positive experience and an outlet for personal development. For the youth participants, it creates a safe environment to learn new skills. Creating and providing full time summer positions for students will effectively reduce their risk at becoming involved in illegal activities such as violence, drug/alcohol use/abuse and vandalism.

Project Manager
Alain Cloutier
Name of institution / organization

Kativik School Board
Project summary
The project focuses on encouraging at-risk youth to make positive lifestyle choices. Participants develop self-confidence and healthy habits through involvement in traditional activities. This project contributes to student retention and overall wellness consequently lessening the likelihood of participants becoming involved in the criminal justice system. Participants are involved in a series of activities with a strong cultural basis, namely traditional qajaq building, paddling, rolling and rope gymnastics. Throughout the entire school year they learn boatbuilding (qajaq & umiaq), paddle making and practice rope gymnastics. In September, they attend an intensive on-the-water training camp with world-renowned Qajaq champion, builder and instructor Maligiaq Padilla in the Outaouais region. Maligiaq's fame and positive image make him a unique and powerful role model with whom youth participants readily connect. A fall qajaq training session in Puvirnituq enables intermediate and more advanced paddlers to acquire certification. The cooking component of the program directly addresses health promotion. Participants learn to prepare a wide range of nutritious and delicious foods, thus developing both good parenting and transferable employment skills. They also operate the school canteen.
